Canadian promoter Nathan James Carl Holder, who was also known as NateBlack, died unexpectedly in Cancun while on vacation.

After a well-known Canadian club promoter died suddenly in Mexico, more than $34,000 was donated by fans to bring his body home.

Nathan James Carl Holder, known as NateBlack, died in Cancun on Monday after he "became ill" and "passed away suddenly," according to CTV News. He was 29.

"We appreciate the love. We can see how Nathan touched so many hearts," said fund-raiser Carolynn Mayers.

Holder co-founded a college socializing website and was active in the Western University community in London, Ontario.
